JEROME'S EYE ON GALLAGHER?

COUNTY DETECTIVES ARREST EXCISE VIOLATORS.

Find Two Saloons Running While the Precinct Sleuths Were Picking Up Women to Be Batled Out at $5 Each-The

Visit Stirs the Police to Activity County Detectives Reardon, O'Neil and Shea visited the Eighteenth precinct at midnight Saturday to see how the police from Capt. Gallagher's East Twenty-second street station were enforcing the excise law. They hadn't announced their visit and were dressed like truck drivers. They got down to Avenue C shortly after 12 o'clock, and at 253 they saw the saloon of James Duffy "wide open," as they described it afterward. There were several men in the place and Reardon and O'Neil entered and ordered beer. They were served by the proprietor, who was then told that he was under arrest. "Who the blazes are you, anyway?" said the saloonkeeper

The men showed their shields and said they were detectives Duffy submitted to arrest and closed up his place. As they started for the station he said to O'Neil, the latter says: "I didn't expect this. There are others in the precinct that can stand it better than I can.

When the county detetives entered the East Twenty-second street station with the prisoner and told who they were several of the precinct detectives hurried out of the station. They had been out picking up women who were loitering on the streets and had arrested eight women, who were bailed out. The professional bondsmen in that precinct charge $5 for each woman.

After turning the saloonkeeper over to the police the county detectives said they thought they would go home, and left the station. Instead they went to Frederick Schaeffer's saloon at 601 East Fourteenth street and were served by the proprietor That was at 12:40 o'clock. Reardon told the proprietor that he was under arrest. "Take my bartender; that'll be all right," the proprietor said to Reardon. "Can't do it; you must come," responded the detective.

The proprietor finally submitted. There were a number of men at the door as they left the place and O'Neil says he heard a man shout: "Jerome's men are around. Go around and tell them to shut up."

The arrival of the second prisoner caused more bustle at the station. Up to that time, about 1 o'clock, the police had not made any excise arrests, but at 1:20 o'clock Detectives Kraus and Devins arrested Patrick Gill in the saloon at First avenue and Nineteenth street, and at 1:35 o'clock Detectives Geisler and McMullen arrested Dennis Coffey, a saloonkeeper of 344 East Twentysecond street.

The policemen were not clear as to why they arrested the men, in the Yorkville police court yesterday. They had no evidence of excise violation and Magistrate Barlow discharged Gill and Coffey.

The county detectives arraigned their prisoners. Lawyer Steinert waived examination for Schaeffer and he was held in $1,000 bail for trial. The lawyer then tried to show that Duffy was about to close up when the detectives entered.

"There is no getting away from the testi-mony of the detectives," announced the Magistrate, as he held the saloonkeeper in $1,000, also, for trial.

Capt. Gallagher has been in command of the precinct for several months. He was ight over from Brooklyn by Com-

"PADDY THE PIG" ARRESTED AGAIN. "Paddy the Pig." whose hotel at Sixth avenue and Thirty-sixth street has been raided at least a dozen times as a pool-room, was arraigned in the Jefferson Market police court yesterday for violation of the excise law. He was arrested shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday morning by de-tectives of the Tenderloin station. They said that when they entered his place two men were sitting in a rear room, and that the door leading to the bar was unfastened. "Paddy," whose real name is Clarence O'Brien, leaned over the bar while the detectives were testifying and grunted his disapproval.

"There are bolts, heavy bolts on that door," he said. "No liquor was sold, and those men pushed their way in."

He was held in $500 bail for trial.

EXCISE ARREST IN HAYMARKET

By Piper's Men-Relief of Tenderloin Cops

When Prisoner Goes Free. Unknown to the police of the Tenderloin station "Shoofly" Cops Curran and Carolin of Deputy Commissioner Piper's staff went to the Haymarket shortly after midnight of Saturday and arrested Charles Smith, 20 years old, a bartender employed there. No attempt at a general raid was made and the policeman on the post knew nothing about the

In the Jefferson Market police court yesterday Curran told Magistrate Ommen that he saw Smith serve two drinks after 12 o'clock. Carolin corroborated him and added that several men and women were seated at the tables drinking after midnight. "This is ridiculous," shouted the lawyer who appeared for Smith. "The Haymarket has been raided too often and the proprietor has paid too many $2,400 fines to invite arrest by violating the law. After 12 o'clock no liquors are sold; only soft drinks are served."

sold after midnight.

Magistrate Ommen then discharged

Smith.

"Gee!" exclaimed one of Capt. O'Connor's sleuths when he heard the decision; "that let's us out. If he'd been held it would have been our finish, not to mention the explanation that would have been called for, 'cause we're supposed to keep a special eye on that joint."

THE RAILWAY AND THE CANAL.

A CONTRAST IN CARRYING COSTS ACROSS NEW YORK.

anal's Tonnage Costs the State More Per Ton Mile Than the New York Central Gets. Including Its Profits -Why Canal Must Fall in Competition.

A Utica business man who, with others of that city, has formed an anti-barge canal club has written to THE SUN asking for information about carrying costs on the canal and by rail. He asks:

What is the annual tonnage of the canal? The total tonnage east and west for 1902 was 3,274,000 tons. It has ranged within 300,000 tons of that figure since 1895, the year in which the people voted $9,000,000 to enlarge the canal and bring it up to date. When the $9,000,000 had been spent the experts said it would take $28,000,000 more to effect the change. That meant a ninefoot canal. For a twelve-foot canal now,

$101,000,000 is asked. What does it cost the State a year to maintain the canal? In 1902 the State paid for the canals $2,263,000. In 1901, when the canal carried

3,420,000 tons, the State paid $3,308,000. What does the annual tonnage cost the State per ton?

In 1901 each ton per mile cost the State What does it cost the New York Central ton? In the same year it cost the Central 4.1 mills a ton. The railroad received 5.9 mills a ton mile, so it made a profit of 1.8 mills per ton mile. The boatmen on the canal got 1.9 mills for their work, so the served."

Several patrons of the Haymarket appeared as witnesses for the prisoner. They said that they were in the place at the time of the arrest and that no liquor had been to $40,000,000 and its expenses are 62 to $40,000,000. The State earns per cent. of its earnings. The State earns nothing from its canal traffic, but pays out more than $3,000,000 a year. It has spent $323,000,000 on the canal since the peginning. What is the elevator charge at Buffalo and at New York?

The Roosevelt canal committee compiled the answer to that question as follows, on each 1,000 bushels of wheat: Elevator charges at Buffalo.

Receiving, weighing and discharging at
New York
Canal boat trimming
Ocean vessel trimming
Floating elevator charge

Chairman Greene of the Roosevelt cana committee wrote in his report that it amounted to 78 cents a ton, which would make a toll of $780 on each 1,000-ton barge load of grain carried from Buffalo to New York

The Buffalo News insists that the proposed barge canal is not to be a waterway to carry the crops of the West to the At-lantic seaboard, and avers: "Three-fourths lantic seaboard, and avers: "Three-fourths of the canal business is local, and but a little more than a tenth of it is of Western grain.

But where is the 20,000,000 tons a year to come from if not from the West? That is the tonnage which an enlarged canal must attract to meet the easiest promises of its advocates. Will it come in local freights? Isn't the canal big enough now to handle twenty times the local freight it can get? Hasn't it accommodated ten times the number of canal boats now plying its waters?

Here Than a Political Outfit Has.

A New York newsboy who gave up his corner a few years ago and went out to Cape Nome. Alaska, to try his fortunes, is the head of an aerie of Eugles there. He has been elected a delegate to the annual convention of that order, which is to be held in Tammany Hall on Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5, and he has sent his proxy to a friend in New York with instructions to vote it

All the transportation cost estimates by the Roosevelt canal committee were based on grain shipments. The whole cry of the Canal Improvement State Committee is enough to carry the Lake boats down to the sea, for that would do away with the elevator tolls at both ends. Let us enlarge it at the cost of the State so that every ton of grain brought down by that route will yield 78 cents to private enterprise which controls the handling of the grain.

controls the handling of the grain.

When will a canal with seventy-two locks, requiring a week for a boat to traverse it, compete with rail lines in the handling of local freight of other than the sixth class? Canal traffic is essentially bulk cargo, grain, lumber and minerals. Who would propose to spend $101,000,000 for a canal to carry the local freight of the State?

Drowned While on a Fishing Trip. John Fister, a clerk, of 18 Crescent street Brooklyn, and a party of friends went out on a fishing excursion on the sloop Emma from Canarsie yesterday morning. While the sloop was opposite the Brighton Beach Hotel Fister accidentally fell overboard and was drowned. His body was not recovered.
